PS1 Bookstore August 5, 2018

The smooth flow of network culture has been normalized.

Downloading and printing are good interruptions! To slow down the material and the overwhelming condition of flow. Small acts to resist dominant narratives.

And so to disperse material, by making it downloadable, is to preserve it—you keep it safe by making copies that disconnect from the network.

To download is to counter-publish.

Once downloaded, files are outside the conventions and economies and flows of publishing and art. On your hard drive, you're free to do whatever you like with your files.

Urgencyprintlab.pdf was created on August 5, 2018 and published at 5:53pm during a workshop conducted by Paul Soulellis at Artbook @ MoMA PS1 Bookstore in Long Island City, NY, USA. This file may be downloaded, shuffled, remixed, printed, re-circulated—even destroyed.

All the songs are for you. I groan

we sing of poisonous flowers
bursting in meadows of fury;
skies of love struck by clots of blood;
epileptic mornings; the white burning of abyssal sands, the sinking of wrecked ships in the middle of nights rent by the smell of wild beasts.

My cousin is nine years old, just like me. We send email to each other almost every day. We tell each other about our schools, our friends, and our soccer teams. Sometimes we send jokes back and forth. Sometimes we ask questions about what we heard in the news about our countries. Sometimes we play chess with each other using the computer. We think of our moves on separate chess sets and then use email* to send our moves back and forth.

Last week our teacher said we were going on a field trip to the fish hatchery. She gave us permission letters to take home to be signed by our parents before we could go. She encouraged us to ask our parents if they would like to come along. We needed some parents to help provide transportation. Every one was supposed to bring a snack and a sack lunch. My dad surprised me by volunteering

That's because, as always at Sundance (as there are at all the more fascinating movies), Panos Cosmatos' Wolfbury is a movie and possibly its greatest achievement. The filmmaker (and his wife, actress Riley Keough) has built a compelling, in several ways, narrative structure that might be the two-act structure might be the only good work in the festival.

Dark art
